Epoch, a Magazine of Contemporary Literature
Has Stories Anthologized

Now in its 61st year, Epoch literary magazine continues to be honored by selections in the annual literary anthologies. This year four stories from one issue are forthcoming in major anthologies.

Two of these authors are Cornell University grads. Manuel Muñoz is a recent graduate of the MFA program, and Lydia Peelle holds a BA in English with a concentration in creative writing. Lyida’s first published story “Mule Killers” appeared in Epoch 53:1 and was included in The O. Henry Prize Stories, 2006. Her book of stories is forthcoming in July 2009.
