The Department of English at Cornell presents

The Paul Gottschalk Memorial Lecture & Graduate Symposium

THURSDAY • 21 OCTOBER 2010 • 4:30 PM • LEWIS AUDITORIUM • GOLDWIN SMITH

The Same Old Grind: Milton’s Samson as Sub-Tragic Hero

RICHARD HALPERN
Sir William Osler Professor of English, Johns Hopkins University

ON FRIDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 22, IN GOLDWIN SMITH 258
Professor Halpern will participate in a symposium entitled

Anachronism and Interpretation

For many contemporary scholars, anachronism is an intellectual error. For early modern writers, however, anachronism was a common literary practice. Can anachronisms in fact enable our engagement with the past? How might anachronism be methodology? Please join us for a symposium motivated by the work of Richard Halpern.

9:30-10:00: Coffee and Light Breakfast
10:00-11:10: Roundtable and Discussion
Adhaar Desai, Rayna Kalas, Jenny Mann, Shilo McGiff
11:10-11:20: Coffee break
11:20-12:30: Roundtable and Discussion
Matthew Bucemi, Abigail Fisher, Matthew Kibbee, Avery Slater